

REPORT LOSS TO ENGLISH

It Is Said Mad Mullah Has Captured and Destroyed Five British Forts.

OFFICERS KILLED

Thirty Nine White Men Out of Forty-Two in the Command. Are Dead.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.) London, June 27.—A dispatch from Odessa, Russia, announces that the police have seized appeals to the citizens of Bessarabia to finish the work begun at Kishineff and make the province too hot for the Jews to live in.

Lithographic Copies The papers seized were all the lithographic copies of a proclamation headed, warning. It said that the government need not be considered and that they really countenanced the action of the Kishineff massacre. All Must Go The document followed up with an account of the wrong doings of the detestable and detested Jews and declared that all southern Russia must be freed of them. Radical means were urged as the Jews would not leave otherwise.

CORNELL CREWS SWEEP HUDSON

Win All Three Races — Wisconsin is a Bad Third Each Time.

Wisconsin crews were third in all three of their races on the Hudson yesterday. Cornell carried off the honors of the day and Georgetown, Syracuse and Pennsylvania divided second honors between them. This does not mean that Wisconsin did not row a good race, but it means that the other crews were faster. It means that the long trip east, the experience of using a new shell with but ten days' practice and the yarra stroke were handicaps that could not be overcome by even such a coach as O'Dea. From all newspaper accounts the varsity race was a close fought affair. Cornell, the favorite won but Wisconsin and Columbia the second choices were beaten by the dark horse, Georgetown. In fact Columbia fell hopelessly in the rear and allowed Pennsylvania and Syracuse to sweep by. When the finish came, Wisconsin was beaten and the awful grueling pace which it had kept up for the four miles left three of his men completely exhausted in the bottom of the boat. Disheartened they were, but they showed their sportsmanlike spirit by electing a captain for next year's crew in the person of Elbert Jordan of Berlin and talking of next year's chances. Old timers say that there is nothing like rowing to develop manhood and the present example makes this theory look plausible.

GOVERNOR FORCED TO RESIGN PLACE

Prince Von Hatzfeldt Resigns Under Pressure from Leipzig Province.

Berlin, June 27.—The resignation of the Duke of Trachenberg, Prince von Hatzfeldt, from the governorship of Leipzig, which was announced today, has not surprised anyone. The Kaiser had intimated to the prince that if he did not resign immediately after election he would be dismissed. There are many reasons for his fall from grace. He had no ability as a politician, and was too outspoken to suit his emperor. Once he caused a sensation in the upper house of Prussian congress by boldly stepping forward in defense of the working people, whom, he said, should not be expected to stand at attention, hat in hand, and receive commands from their masters, as in days of old.

STOLEN WHEEL WAS RETURNED

Young Day's Wheel Was Only Taken by Mistake, and Brought Back.

Homer Day, son of Mrs. J. D. Day, had his bicycle taken from him at eleven o'clock this morning. He was playing ball on Bluff street and left his wheel by the roadside, when two men in a delivery wagon stopped and putting the wheel in their wagon drove rapidly away. Later developments proved that the taking of the wheel was a mistake. It was returned and the driver of the wagon claimed that he thought it was a machine owned by another person.

WHEAT CROPS ARE IN DANGER

Winter Variety Had Too Much Moisture During Spring Months—Many Discouraging Facts. (Special By Scripps-Mellae.)

Chicago, June 27.—Rain clouds hanging over the Northwest wheat-growing states just now would be a most welcome sight to the anxious watchers whose calculations on the winter and spring crop are held in abeyance or subjected to disappointing reductions with every tidings from Minnesota and the Dakotas betokening a continuance of the drought that has prevailed since the first part of March. The wheat traders are undergoing a considerable scare, but it is a "dry weather" scare, and not due to any individual manipulation of the market.

Rumor of Rain. Although private advices to Chicago traders Friday night indicated that a genuine rainstorm had burst upon the wheat regions in Red River valley, the weather office failed to verify the report. There were showers in Montana, to the west of the Dakotas, but this held little more than a promise, and a most uncertain sort of promise, for those who wanted the storms to cross over to the east, where they would benefit the crops. In Williston, N. D., the barest suggestion of a shower sprinkled the land, and in various portions of the state clouds that might portend a little moisture were observed and hailed with hope.

Drought Affects Crops. But the weather bureau sees no heavy rainfall in all this. The report of "cloudy to partly cloudy," test it give too much hope to the hosts whose interest in the wheat is at fever point just now, is supplemented with the prediction that the weather will continue "fair" in the Northwest. It is freely conceded that the crop will fall far below earlier estimates.

WILL INVESTIGATE THE CONVICT CAMPS

Brutal Treatment of the Men Held For Crime Is Alleged by Governor of Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., June 27.—Gov. Terrell has ordered an investigation of the misdemeanor convict camps of Georgia because of the evidence presented to him that these camps are hotbeds of brutality.

The camp to be first investigated is that of Branch brothers in Oglethorpe county. The governor in his orders charges that illegal acts are committed there, including cruel and inhuman whipping, infliction of punishment upon convicts by persons unauthorized by law, and failure to provide proper food, clothing, tobacco and sleeping quarters, as required by law. It is alleged that the convicts have almost been cut to pieces by whips and that they are huddled together at night like brutes.

Edward McCree, a member of the house, runs a convict camp and he has been charged by a grand jury with holding men in servitude.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 27.—Nine members of the St. Paul and Milwaukee baseball teams had narrow escapes from death in a fire which started in a tailor shop in Grand avenue and spread to the Davidson hotel, where they were sleeping. Catcher Bob Wood of the Milwaukee team, who turned in the alarm, ran through the hotel and aroused them. They fled from the building in their underclothing just as the flames burst in.

A panic in the Alhambra theater was narrowly averted. The anxiety of the audience was allayed by an announcement from the stage that the theater was in no danger. The great Boston store and the Matthews building also were damaged. All the hotel guests escaped. The damage is $200,000.

POOR WEATHER CURTAILS TRADE

Business in Seasonable Lines Small, Because of Cool Weather—Buyers Holding Back Orders.

New York, June 27.—"No definitely unfavorable element is apparent in the business situation, but there are several uncertainties that engender a more conservative feeling. In regard to distribution of merchandise, the long period of low temperature has curtailed trade in dry goods, clothing and other seasonable lines. Stocks have accumulated, and prospects for semi-annual inventories are not altogether encouraging. Railway earnings thus far available for June surpass last year's by 10.2 per cent and exceed those of 1901 by 17.4 per cent. After further moderate concessions in prices of iron and steel, especially in pig iron and partly finished shapes, the market has steadied, and there are indications that no additional reductions of consequence are probable for the present."

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade makes the foregoing summary of the industrial situation. Continuing the review says:

Tone is Improving. "Buyers are still uncertain as to whether the bottom has been reached, and there is no eagerness to place contracts. Concessions are no longer readily obtained, however, and the tone is improving. While it is well known that a large amount of new machinery is specified in plants in course of erection, or contemplated, there is an inclination to delay the placing of contracts as long as possible. Much of interest has developed in regard to the foreign situation. Contracts for steel rails were placed abroad, presumably because of early shipment required, while rebate of duty on materials for manufacture and export encouraged foreign trade, which has begun to revive as the domestic market quiets.

WISCONSIN AS GRAZING GROUND

Western Stockmen Plan To Bring Large Herds Here for Fattening.

Arrangements have just been completed by officials of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway under which thousands of head of range cattle from Montana and North Dakota, and large herds from northern Illinois and Iowa will be shipped into Wisconsin and fattened for market this summer.

During the last ten days a party of Montana and North Dakota stockmen from the Chicago and Kansas City markets and from Iowa, have been inspecting the feeding grounds in Washburn, Sawyer, Barron, Burnett, Douglas, and other north Wisconsin counties, and as guests of officials of the Omaha, made a thorough investigation of the possibilities of transporting cattle to northern Wisconsin, fattening them there, and shipping them to market in the fall in prime condition.

"We found an excellent country in which to fatten cattle," said H. Gates a Montana cattleman, in reporting the results of the investigation, "and have concluded arrangements which will be satisfactory both to the road and to us. The entire country seems to be thoroughly supplied with streams, and the grass could not be better. The combination of fine grass and plenty of good water makes ideal feeding ground for cattle in process of fattening for the market."

"We are going into northern Wisconsin chiefly as an experiment. We believe we can 'board' cattle on this grass for a few months cheaply, and obtain in the improved condition of the cattle, a good profit. Prime fat cattle bring good prices, and where fattening can be cheaply accomplished it gives opportunity for large profits."

"The north Wisconsin country is superior to any I have ever seen for feeding purposes."

Eight thousand acres of land, bought by other parties for feeding purposes during the winter, have been fenced and will be stocked during July with cattle that will be marketed during the fall at South St. Paul, Chicago, and Kansas City.

ACCIDENT DUE TO LACK OF FLAGMAN

J. W. Clark Encountered Switch Engine Backing Around North Main Street Bend.

J. W. Clark was a likely candidate for a coroner's jury yesterday. By uncommon luck he escaped almost without injuries, but had a bicycle reduced to its integral parts.

By the impact Clark was thrown from his wheel, and luckily clear of the track. The bicycle fared less fortunately.

CROP OUTLOOK MUCH BETTER

SUN IS NEEDED TO ASSURE BIG HARVEST.

VEGETATION IS VERY RANK

Rains Have Made Everything Almost Tropical in Their Appearance.

Warm sunshine will do wonders for the farmers throughout the whole state, particularly in Rock county. Vegetation is rank and large; whether the yield will be in proportion to the growth brought about by the wet weather, yet remains to be seen. Corn is up about three feet and in some places as high as five feet. It has a strong, sturdy stalk, but like other farm products needs sunshine to develop it. Too much rain is worse than too much drought and the present season, thus far has not been blessed with a single day in which the sun has shown all day without any intermission.

Warmer Weather The Rev. Dr. Hicks predicts a warmer wave, beginning June 25. He says the barometer will be low and that storms of wind and rain will follow which will last for a day or two. Then the weather will become cool again about the 27th with warmer weather from then until the fourth of July. This learned weather prophet predicts rainy and wet weather for the first of July. He warns the farmers against cutting their hay during this period, as the prospects of its being ruined if done will be good.

Very Pessimistic Perhaps the doctor is a little pessimistic but still it looks from the present weather reports that he is right. If this keeps up the weeds will get away from the farmers and this line of crops will be far in excess of the legitimate line of planting done early in the spring. It would, however, be wise to watch the clouds for ten days or so longer after which time clear warm weather is promised for the rest of July.

Winter Wheat and Rye Winter Wheat and rye are doing as well as could be expected. In the low ground they were dwarfed and the yield was not large. The present heading seems to be good, but just how much grain will be forthcoming when the harvest is on remains to be seen. The constant rains have not given it a chance to ripen properly and if a sudden dry spell does come it is liable to develop rust.

Potatoes Potatoes thus far have not been damaged much. While prices have gone up in Milwaukee owing to the reported scarcity throughout the state dealers say that it is merely a temporary inflation that will go down again as soon as the present supplies now on the fields come on the market. The plants are strong and sturdy and in some gardens in the city, the potatoes themselves have been dug and are very large for this season.

Garden Truck Lettuce is such an old story to write of at this season that it may be passed over by saying that this years crop has been greatly benefited by the rains. One method of bleaching the leaves which makes them doubly tender is to tie the tops together twenty-four hours before picking. This makes the inside leaves white and juicy as in the early spring, and they lose all the sandy taste so common.

Beans and Peas Beans and Peas are most excellent in some localities the frost of the first of the month did much damage but careful use of the watering pot saved many of the city gardens and their owners have been doubly repaid for their trouble. Early peas have been yielding for some weeks past and later ones are about to come into the market. Beans are running to vine rapidly and many messes will be gathered by July 1, throughout the county.

The Fruits In some portions of the county, strawberries are almost a drug on the market. Milwaukee is clamoring for them but does not seem to be able to get the sufficient quantity wanted. Many are being used for preserving and the prices are averaging about $1.25 to $1.50 per case. Blackberries and raspberries promise a good yield. Thus far those shipped from Illinois are not of the best quality.

During the recent Kansas City floods, the branch office of the Janesville Machine company was for six days flooded in ten and one-half feet of water. It was six and a half feet deep in the main offices and to the level of the street four feet deeper. The accompanying cut shows the Janesville Machine company's warehouse and the condition and appearance of the street at the time the flood was at its height. For nearly a week Mr. Emmett, the company's agent, was unable to get into the building. One of the trade journals of Kansas City contains the following: "W. H. Emmett of the Janesville Machine company thinks it's time now for his company to send him a brand new desk. The flood made sad work of the relic he was using. Mr. Emmett, after working in the ooze all one forenoon, returned to his room in the Coates house and thoughtlessly hung his soiled suit in his clothes press before going to lunch. When he returned the stenich in the room was about as rank as it was on West Twelfth street." The loss to the company was not great, however, as most of the stock was stored on the upper floors of the building. At one time in this part of the city, a hen with a brood of chickens, a duck and a rat, all riding serenely on the top of a piano as it floated down the street, was one of the scenes of the flood."

Town Talks.

"Oh, Joe! hello, Joe! pretty cold, Joe! Better make a fire, Joe!" perched on a position of eminence, and speaking with the calm assurance of a member of the family of forty years' standing, an aged parrot addresses Joe Harvey each evening as he returns from his labors of the day. Not always in the above words does the antique bird accost its master, although the request for heat has come with emphatic frequency, during the past weeks.

The ancient towl will celebrate its sixty-first birthday before long. For two score years of its life it has resided in the Harvey family. The father of its present owner secured the parrot on one of his trips to the Indies, when he was in the employ of the India company.

When Joe Harvey married, the bird left the parental home, principally because it had always exhibited a decided preference for him.

Together the two had held long converse, and it is asserted that the knowledge that the bird displayed of current affairs was almost beyond belief. Of late the feathered creature has been less taken into confidence, and its remarks are more of the nature of admonitions than friendly exchanges of ideas.

Some day the archaic parrot will go to join its ancestors in the realm of feathered creatures, and there will be mourning in the Harvey home. Its long residence among members of the same family has gained it a privileged place accorded few feathered pets.

Not many nights ago, a late-staying club member had the unique experience of arriving a back home, instead of following the usual reversed custom. At the hour when he departed from his congenial companions, the prospect of a long walk to his home was exceedingly distasteful. Consequently he made his way to the nearest carriage which was standing by the curb.

The hour was late, extremely so, and the driver had succumbed to drowsiness. All efforts to wake him were fruitless, and finally, in despair, the would-be passenger, untied the horses clambered to the box, and seized the reins. The way those horses moved was far from slow and soon Mr. Clubman was at his home.

The sensations and verbal utterances of the hack driver upon awakening were not of a nature adapted for publication.

Letter to Mr. R. M. Bostwick, Janesville, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir: When you see a well-dressed man, you like to say: "There's a sample of my clothes. That man is worth two of himself as when he came to me."

We have the same feeling. Our paint on a house is worth twice as much as old-fashioned painter's paint lead and oil. It looks the same when first put on. In three months it don't. In three years, it decidedly don't.

Lead and oil chalks off in three years; it is considered a first rate job that lasts three years.

Devco Ready Paint is about as good in three years as it was the day the painter left it.

Zinc is the secret of it; no secret at all. A good many painters know zinc; some mix it in with their lead. We grind it in; not a little; a good deal.

It's the zinc and the grinding that does it. You can't mix zinc by hand. We grind it by machinery.

Painters are finding us out, though some painters are slow.

You know that it pays a good man to wear good clothes. How many customers have you that know it?

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVCO & CO.

Water Companies
A water supply company occupying the streets of a city under an ordinance requiring it to maintain a certain number of fire hydrants, and providing for the payment of an annual rental therefor by the city out of its revenue derived from taxation, is not liable in an action for the loss of a building by fire, which could have been saved but for its failure to have mains and hydrant supplied with sufficient fire protection at the time of the fire. 44 Southeastern Rep. (West Virginia, Judge Poffenberger) 230.

Importation
The United States General appraisers at the port of New York have decided that an importation is complete when the goods are brought within the limits of a port or entry with the intention of unloading them, and the right of the government to duties than attaches. Is is not essential to that right that the goods should be actually unloaded. Coal was imported on a steamship, and entered at the custom house, but a portion of it was purchased by the owners of the ship and remained in the bunkers as part of her coal stores for the return voyage, and was never unloaded. Held, that it was, nevertheless dutiable; that the sale being made after the importation was complete could not operate to defeat the government's rights to duties. 6 Treasury Decisions, June 18.

Cab Owners
Judge Ray, in the United States circuit court at New York, has handed down a decision holding that the owner of a licensed cab is responsible for any damage that the driver may inflict through negligence or careless ness, even though the driver has hired the cab by the day. In the past, owners of the cabs have frequently escaped liability by claiming that they rented the cab to the driver and the driver was liable.

Physicians
In an action against a physician and surgeon for alleged negligent treatment of a compound fracture of the bone, where there is evidence that under proper treatment the fracture should have united within six weeks and that plaintiff was confined under defendant's treatment for a period of fourteen weeks, most of the time in great pain, a verdict of $1,140 is not excessive. Northwestern Rep. (Nebraska, Judge Lobingier) 1093.

Brakemen
A brakeman on a passenger train has authority to remove from the platform one who is stealing a ride, so that if he wantonly and recklessly pushed him off the train while it is going at a dangerous rate of speed, the carrier is not liable for the injury. 67 Northeastern Rep. (Mass Judge Morton) 329.

Gilbert and Sullivan did not labor to invoke bolsterous encores or dazzle the public with catchy "song hits." They were not compelled to provide special scenes for the puerile "show girls" says Geo. Ade, in the Theater Magazine, for June. Neither did they feel compelled to alter the construction so as to give mere "fat" to the insatiable "Broadway comedian." There are several reasons why the Gilbert and Sullivan kind of light opera does not appeal to the majority of our managers and comedians today. The first rule in the making of an up to date musical comedy seems to be that it shall be capable of a gorgeous "production." The immense success of pieces such as those offered by Rogers Brothers, Anna Held, and other money-making stars, has served to convince managers that no matter what happens to the "book" or the story, the stage must bloom at frequent intervals with lovely girls in expensive raiment, and the songs, no matter by what pretext brought into the piece, must receive loud and emphatic applause which is a sure indication of a "hit." And though critics may rave, the astute manager defends his policy by producing the box office statement. And yet, in spite of the enormous profits reaped by musical comedies totally unlike the gentle compositions of Gilbert and Sullivan it would seem that the public can still be diverted by musical plays that give the "book" and a satirical quality in the dialogue, precedence over the glittering vaudeville features.

If an earthquake had shaken Weber & Fields' little theatre a couple of days ago several pecks of diamonds would have been precatized to the stage. The firm had advertised for next season's chorus and about 200 "Yolandes," "Dulcetes," "Beryls," "Bonnies," etc., etc., let their automobiles stand outside in the rain while they assembled on the stage. Mr. Fields announced that the salaries would run between $18 and $40 a week, but no considerable exodus was noticeable when these scandalously low figures were given.

A cable dispatch has been received from William A. Brady saying that Miss Grace George would not appear in "Pretty Peggy" in London. She has leased a house in Paris, where she will stay until she goes to Italy late in August. She will return earlier than expected in order to make a month's tour before opening at the Madison Square theatre.

Marie Bates will not be with David Warfield next season. Mrs. Carter is to revive "Zara" with "Du Barry" next season and has demanded the return of Mrs. Bates in her old part of the tipsy aunt.

The bookings of fourteen companies presenting melodrama next season, all of which with one exception, are from the prolific pen of Theodore Kremer, have been completed by Sullivan, Harris & Woods.

Nelle and Lola Hawthorne are to abandon the vaudeville stage next season and will play the principal part in a new piece called "The Fortune Hunters." The company will play the combination houses.

Hugh Stanton, who claims the distinction of having been the first actor to present one-act plays in vaudeville, will shortly play an extended engagement in London, appearing in several playlets of his own creation.

Frank Deshon, who has been playing King Dodo, has been given his release by Henry W. Savage, at the request of Messrs. Nixon, Zimmerman, and next season he will resume his old part in "Miss Bob White."

Reata Winfield, the New York actress who went to London to fulfill vaudeville engagements and who was reported to be dying in a hospital in the English city, is now on the road to recovery and will shortly be sent home by friends.

Under the auspices of the Greater New York Irish A. A. the all-around championship of the A. A. U. will be contested at New York on July 4th. There will be a big accompanying carnival of sport. Besides the all-around championship there will be an all-around weight throwing contest, as well as scratch and handicap races, at from one hundred yards to three miles.

Adam B. Gunn, of Buffalo for two year holder of the all-around championship, has had his chances seriously impaired by a severely strained leg which he received a few days ago. A similar accident occurred at about this same time last year. He has been in consultation with a famous physician, and may be in shape for the contest.

Ed Merrill of Beloit, who gave Gunn so close a race last year that athletic experts declared the title should have gone to the Wisconsin athlete, will not compete this year, being disabled by turning professional baseball player. He is wearing a Rockford suit in the Three-Eye aggregation.

"Billy Phelon" of the Chicago Journal hits off some good things on sports. He quotes Tom Loftus, of baseball magnate fame, as follows: "Baseball sense is born, not acquired. I've seen kids just breaking in who knew more than some of the old-timers, and I've seen other kids who didn't know anything, and never would. There are men in the big leagues today, veterans of ten years standing, who haven't baseball sense enough to keep from running up against the ball in the fielders' hand, but hold their jobs because they are natural hitters."

Ancient relative standing of English hackney breeders and the American-bred heavy harness horses a horse man writes the Review:

"In the last few years so many American bred heavy harness horses have been winning at the English horse shows, that the English hackney breeders seem to be alarmed, and in several of the prize schedules issued this year by horse show associations here occur the words, 'American Horses Barred.'"

"It is important that breeders of trotting horses in the states should be aware of this, as otherwise when they read of 'So and So' pure hackney bred, carrying all before him, at this year's horse shows, they will think he is beating trotting heavy bred harness horses, whereas he wins only because he has only Hackneys to compete against."

"This barring trotters is, I think, the greatest compliment Hackney men could pay the American horse, as it shows that they have no chance in competing against them. It is to be hoped, therefore, that American breeders will continue to breed heavy harness horses in trotting blood, and give up the Hackney cross; for the trotting bred heavy harness horse is bound to beat the dying breed of Hackneys, which is now only kept alive by artificial means, as is any other 'society' lad, and must be protected by barring other breeds."

The Review is and is not, surprised at this news. It is surprised because it scarce supposed that such a "come-down" would be sufferable by British pride. It is not surprised, because it felt, if the exhibition of American trotting-bred horses continued at British shows, the result was bound to be the same as it has been in this country, where for a number of years past the Hackneys exhibited have been, of necessity, confined to the empty glory (?) of showing against and winning over each other, because as actual competitors, of trotting-bred horses, they had ceased to be regarded as anything but a very feeble joke.

After all, none of nature's laws is so beneficent and so merciless in its operations, as that of the survival of the fittest. Once in a while it may be temporarily diverted by some strenuous deadset instituted for the express purpose, but in the end it is sure to serenely resume the tenor of its way, sloughing off weakness and imperfections and perpetuating only what is best. In the evolution of the harness horse the part of which the Hackney has played, or attempted to play, is about played out. Its sphere is steadily being restricted, and it will continue to dwindle until it eventually reaches the vanishing point. Meanwhile, the American trotter steadily marches on, his sphere ever widening, his beauty, his utility and his popularity everyday increasing and a new being demonstrated, conquering new worlds as he enters them, and sweeping everything before him by sheer force of inherent merit.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Probable showers tonight and Sunday.

LOOK OUT FOR THE FUTURE

A family of five squirrels made their home in an old oak tree in front of a summer cottage. The three children half grown, put on a good deal more style than their mother, while the head of the household, seemed to be regarded as a back number.

The whole family were early risers, and it was plain to be seen that the younger members were receiving daily instructions along the lines of thrift and economy. The ground around the tree was a store house, where was deposited the supply of nuts carefully concealed, and after the morning meal, the whole family scampered out into the woods, to return with more food, which was hid away in the ground and covered up for future use.

The old people had discovered that life was not all a holiday, and that the winters are much longer than the summers, and so they said to the children, after breakfast the other morning.

"You may think that this is work, hiding one nut for tomorrow to take the place of the one you eat today, but that is just exercise. When November comes, we will spend the entire month in putting away a stock of nuts in the hollow of that old tree, across the way for our use next winter."

The children growled a good deal over the prospect and said they didn't know anything about winter, but the old folks said "that's all right, you'll find out" and so the training in the squirrel family is progressing.

The study of nature, and of animal life is always an interesting study. Whether the storm rages or the air is bright with sunshine, there is never a word of complaint. The first gray streak of dawn is greeted with a chorus that fills the air with melody, and a murmur of content echoes through the woods at sunset.

There is no element of discord or envy, and no class distinctions. It is a busy happy world, where every inhabitant is satisfied to live his own life with no thought of preferment or rivalry.

The prospective of animal life does not extend very largely into the future, but there is an atmosphere of thrift about it that is worthy of emulation. Always ambitious and seldom weary, never sick and ever in normal condition this creature of the field and wood, whose population has never been enumerated, comes into life, passes through it, and goes out with so little commotion, that but little attention is bestowed, and yet it is a busy world, whose inhabitants carry burdens and assume responsibilities without question or complaint.

The animal kingdom, barring accident, live out allotted time, because the laws of health are observed. The citizens of this kingdom seldom suffer want, because they provide for the future, and long before the blasts of winter sweep over the brown forests they are safely housed with a store of provisions within easy reach content to wait patiently through the long months for the return of spring.

The animal kingdom is an open book of object lessons, so full of helpful suggestions that he who runs may read.

When the age has been reached, when the child should commence to scratch for itself, the mother never hesitates. The bird is tumbled out of the nest and given his first lesson in honest toil, no fear that he will ever develop a tramp or vagabond, or that he will become contaminated by mixing with the common herd.

He is taught independence and self reliance in a day, and the lesson is never forgotten.

This kind of discipline, that is so universally enforced in the animal kingdom, could be adopted to good advantage in the larger realm of humanity. There are too many boys and girls who are helpless when they leave the home, and whose helplessness accumulates with the years. There are men in middle life who have been a constant drain on the home ever since they left it, and women who never acquire the independence of womanhood.

These conditions may not always be the fault of the home, but it is not the fault, they are certainly the misfortune. There is a world of not house culture, stimulated by the false notion that Tom or Jane is made of a little better clay than the average mortal, and the boy or girl go down before the first blast, as the result.

This class of sentiment has no place in the animal kingdom, and there are no failures. There is no family pedigree to trace or no false modesty to be preserved. The world at large is a kindly world, filled with opportunities, and open to all contestants. When the child enters it, he is filled with hope and courage, and he scratches for himself with a determination that brooks no defeat.

The bird goes south to spend the winter in a tropical climate. The bee improves the sunshine of summer and lays by a store to last until the season comes again. The squirrel gathers food from the forest and lives a contented life in the old tree through the long months of severe winter.

The boy takes on man's estate with frequently but little thought for the future. The summer time of life may be propitious, opportunities may be abundant, but the real saloon absorbs the week's wages, and the winter of age finds him a physical and moral wreck.

The discontent and unrest which prevails today throughout the land, in the industrial world is largely due to improvidence. The man who owns a home or who possesses a bank account, is seldom found in the ranks of strikers.

He is never troubled with the notion that the world owes him a living, and that it will be provided without exertion on his part. It has never occurred to him that the man who furnishes employment is an enemy to labor, and he has no inclination to nurse a grievance. He is willing to work and always glad of the opportunity.

While it is wise to be a provident and lay by a little money for old age, and a rainy day, it is also well to remember that there are other resources of greater importance. Many men and women who should be in the prime of life, ready for any emergency are physical wrecks with no one to thank for the wreckage but themselves.

The candle has been burned at both ends, until there is nothing left but a shadow. Some sort of intemperance has mastered them. It may not have been drink, for that is only one of the many excesses that undermine health. Whatever the cause, the work is accomplished, and the life that was planned for age and maturity is squandered.

It is a pleasant sensation to be able to draw a check in payment of any legitimate business demand, but it is worth more to be able to call upon the body for any strain that may be put upon it.

What is true of the physical, is more than true of the mental. There are very few thinking people, who have lived out half their days, who have not had occasion to regret their lack of resources, along the line of mental equipment.

This feeling comes to the man in business, when sharp competition drives him from the field, and when others pass him in the race. It comes to the man in industrial life, when the resources of the brain do not keep pace with the skill of the hand, and when his comrade at the bench moves up a peg, because capable of taking on larger responsibilities.

The mind is a warehouse that is seldom filled to its capacity, and in many cases it is only occupied with a single thought. Men and women fall in every department of toil because they lack resources that should have been accumulated back in the years devoted to accumulation.

Life in the animal kingdom is devoted to caring for the physical. When this is done, the mission is accomplished. There is a class of people and the number is by no means insignificant, whose energies are invested in the same direction, and whose ambition is satisfied with board and lodging.

Humanity at its best recognizes a three fold kingdom; the physical, mental and moral. While the two former are not neglected, the latter is cultivated with care, because it has to do with the heart. If this kingdom is resourceful, the graces of character develop, and treasures accumulate, with the years, as a crowning glory that stretches on to the life beyond.

A CELEBRATION

One of the most interesting features on the coming Fourth will be the opening by President Roosevelt of the American cable to Manila. The work has been pushed in a vigorous, business like manner. It was quite recently that the cable went into operation to Hawaii, and now the long stretch between Honolulu and Manila will be ready for business in a few days, with all stations on American soil. A prediction six years ago that such a thing could happen by 1903 would have been considered a wild flight for the imagination. But our outposts are planted on the far side of the Pacific, and our own cable fills the link for instant communication. Uncle Sam will have a fresh achievement to talk about on the national birthday.

The Chicago Tribune prints a complete account of the dedication of Beloit college's new gymnasium and just what material it is built of and how it looks. The truth is the corner stone was laid this week and the building will not be done for months to come. Small papers may have great ambition to make good appearances but for printing pure and simple fakes give us our city dailies.

Admiral Cotton received his German Majesty on board the Kearsarge and the first thing his highness said, was, "Where do you come from?" Admiral Cotton modestly replied, "From Milwaukee your Majesty where they make beer." Milwaukee? Said his Majesty, "Oh yes that is where Henry says all the pretty girls. Henry is a great fellow for pretty girls."

Has the third term boom started yet or is the senatorial or vice presidential bee that is buzzing about the state capital. Any way its a harmless drone and will not sting any one. It makes more noise than it does damage so let it buzz.

Can anyone explain why the state spends so much money each year for fisheries and yet allow a favored few, State Sen. McGilivray for example to throw sawdust into northern trout streams? Is it a pull or what.

Some mean man says that the reason why Bryan says nothing about the great democratic boodle in Missouri is because the $1,000 bills used in the bribery were all silver certificates.

A Wisconsin man has solved the process of flying and will sell his patent to some philanthropist for a modest sum of two million. Here is your chance Carnegie. Just buy this right and then fly around and take a look at your libraries.

Beloit college is to have $50,000 library. Good for Beloit. The little Congregational school will soon be the big Congregational university. "More power, to ye."

Philadelphia may have a rotten ring and pretty rotten politics but they have been just strong enough thus far to keep John Wanamaker from putting on the senatorial toga.

Hon. Joseph Babcock will not make any mistakes despite the Chicago papers. Nor does he belong to any administration gum shoe brigade just yet.

Matt Quay has not announced his retirement from national politics for weeks past.

PRESS COMMENT

Marquette Eagle: If people pushed up their own wheel as hard as they do on other peoples', more fortunes would be made.

Baltimore Herald: Lynbomir Zsikhovits was one of the leaders in the Serbian revolt. A man who can carry around a name like that is fit for any sort of wickedness.

Philadelphia Bulletin: Hawaii has a pressing "labor problem" on its hands. It is the question how to make people work in a climate which produces food in such abundance that they don't have to.

ELECTRIC CAR STRUCK A MAN

WINN VAN HORN THROWS HIMSELF ON TRACK.

THOUGHT TO BE DERANGED

Accident Occurred Near the Choate-Hollister Works at About 8:30 Last Evening.

From a hiding place behind a pole, a man giving his name as Winn Van Horn last night leaped into the path of the 8:15 interurban car bound for Beloit. The resultant injuries were serious but not necessarily fatal. Two theories are advanced to account for his action—that he was mentally deranged and that he deliberately attempted suicide. The former view is favored because of his supposed identity with a man seen in La Prairie Thursday who was evidently not sound in mind. Van Horn is now at the Palmer Memorial hospital.

Jumped When Car Near
The accident occurred a short distance south of the North-Western subway near the Choate-Hollister works. The 8:15 car was speeding toward Beloit in charge of Motorman Laycock and Conductor Abe Dougherty.

As it was an uphill grade the car was not hitting topside. Lighted by the powerful headlight the track could be seen for a quarter of a mile. Suddenly a man leaped from behind a pole, where he had been hiding, and threw himself full on the track. The emergency brake brought the car to a stop within its own length, but not before the man had been struck by the fender and tossed in the ditch.

Was Severely Bruised
After taking the man on board, the car proceeded to the next siding where he was transferred to the northbound car.

At the time the man was picked up he was plastered with dirt and blood, but was still alive. As soon as he reached the city he was taken to the Palmer Memorial hospital where Dr. W. H. Palmer attended him. There were numerous cuts, but it could not be determined of how serious a nature they were. His left side, both of the head and body, were most seriously injured.

May Have Been Insane
When questioned by Chief Hogan the man gave his name as Winn Van Horn. He said that he had formerly lived here, and knew the chief, although the latter failed to recall the man. He was not badly dressed, although in a working man's attire. Nearly a week's growth of beard obscured his face.

He may be identical with the man of whom Will McConnell made complaint to Chief Hogan. McConnell saw the man near his farm in La Prairie Thursday night and thought him insane.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM ACCIDENT

Woman Blinded by Headlight, Drives in Front of an Electric Car.

Blinded by the glare of the headlight of an interurban car Mrs. Enoch Taylor drove her buggy onto the car tracks in front of a moving car and had it not been for the slow speed with which the car was traveling she and her horse would have had a much more severe handling than they did. The car was stopped just in time to avoid a mix-up. This was the same car that brought Van Horn into the city after his accident and the motorman was ringing the bell every few feet to avoid another.

WANTS CITY TO BUY MACHINES

S. C. Hamilton of the United States Standard Voting Machine company, arrived in the city this morning to make a final attempt to sell a number of machines to this city.

At a recent meeting of the common council a letter from Mr. Hamilton was presented, in which he repeated his offer to provide the city with voting machines, payments to amount to the sum saved the city by their use.

When the machines were first put before the council the offer was suddenly withdrawn by the company upon receipt of an order for nearly all the machines they could supply, from Milwaukee.

This visit Mr. Hamilton hopes will be his last on this mission.

BARK LICE KILL OFF ALL TREES

MAPLES, BASWOODS AND OTHER SHADES GROWTHS SUFFER.

KEROSENE THE BEST REMEDY

Have They Made Their Appearance in Janesville Yet? Milwaukee Infested.

Owners of shade trees throughout the city, especially maples and basswoods, had best look to their well-being and notice if a cottonlike substance with the appearance of a petrified shampoo is not formed on the lower branches. Milwaukee is having such an experience and many residents of Janesville will remember when just such a plague ate up all the trees ten years ago leaving them bare and denuded of all foliage in the middle of August. The white substance is a mass of eggs ready to produce millions of tiny gray aphides with shell-like figures and voracious appetites.

From Europe

This scale is a European species which has spread generally over the country, and is most harmful in the temperate zone. It made its appearance here a few years ago, but never before came out in such great quantities. As the operations of trees, it is urged that great care be taken.

The pest are extremely detrimental to trees. It is urged that the city employ an expert to give his attention to their care.

Dead Trees

The fate of the large number of shade trees that have died during the last few years is an object lesson of what may be expected of those more recently planted unless something is done to check the ravages of the insects. In many cases they will gain such a foothold as to threaten the existence of the trees, and in other instances the owners are employing men to remove the scale by spraying.

Destroy Eggs

To accomplish the purpose, it is necessary to be able to destroy the insects and their eggs without injury to the foliage. A solution of kerosene, soap, and water is the most effective remedy thus far discovered, although many others have been tried with more or less success.

Here, the knowledge of the expert comes into play, as mixing in the right quantities of ingredients may make or mar the trees. Too much kerosene destroys the foliage. Too much of the panacea is ineffective. From the suctorial habits of this group of insects, this remedy is available because it can be applied in large doses by means of hose and pump, and because it destroys life by simple contact or by inhaling through the spiracles.

ONE MORE WEEK FOR LICENSES

Saloon Keepers Have Not Much Time Left in Which To Make Application for License.

Applications for saloon licenses for the coming year have come in rather rapidly during the past week, but the actual rush, when the treasurer's desk in the city hall will be piled high with rolls of five hundred dollars each will come next week, the last week which is given the saloon keepers to make application, file their bonds, and pay their license money.

Up to this noon about twenty applications for licenses had been made, none of them being for new locations, although a new proprietor has taken the Ottoman house.

Only four druggists have asked for licenses to sell liquor.

ON THE BRIDGE

MISS LA FOLLETTE WILL APPEAR HERE

Daughter of the Governor Will Have Leading Part in Walton Pyre's Play.

An interesting fact in connection with "A Russian Honeymoon" by Mr. Pyre and his company at Myers Grand, Thursday, July 9th, is that Miss Fola La Follette, the daughter of the late Governor, is to play the part of "Michelle." Mr. Pyre has been fortunate in securing an unusually brilliant support. It is known by the governor's own friends that he wavered in his selection of his career at one time, and it would not have been a surprise to those who knew him best if he had adopted the stage as a profession. While a young man he stirred the literary circles by his masterful orations on the subject of "Iago." As a result Edwin Booth and Laurence Barrett, who were then the greatest lights of the stage, summoned the young man and interviewed him on the subject. Mr. La Follette, however, decided to try his great talents in the legal profession and later in political fields, with what success everybody knows. Yet there can be no doubt had he wished to become an actor he would have reached the top in that comprehensive art as in the line he adopted.

It is not strange, therefore, that Miss La Follette should have also evinced unusual inherited dramatic ability. It is expected that many society people will be interested in the fact that Miss La Follette will appear here, and she will surely have a cordial reception when she appears on the stage in the character, not as one of the hostesses of the executive mansion, but as the bewitching peasant, "Michelle," in the humble shoe shop of her father, "Oran," on the border of Poland and Russia.

Danced at Grange Hall: Several Janesville couples attended the dance at the town of Janesville Grange hall last evening. Music was furnished by Kellogg and Conroy's orchestra.

THREE MONTHS TO COMPLETE

TIME IN WHICH POSTOFFICE WILL BE FINISHED.

STONE WORK IS NEARLY DONE

Last Stones Will Be Laid on Monday—Changes in Specifications—Very Careful Inspection.

The final stone will be laid on Uncle Sam's new building on Monday. The last stone-work to be done is the laying of the steps, which are not yet complete. There is still some carving to be done, but every stone will be in place the first of next week. The eagle over the entrance must be chiselled here and there, and the pillar caps, which are in the semi-rough, must be carved.

By one week from Monday the plasterers will take occupation of the building. The lathing is nearly completed in readiness for them.

White Vermont marble will be used in wainscoting for the lobby of the postoffice, a change which has been made by the government from the original specifications, which called for wood.

October 1 is the date now set for the completion of the work, and the time is regarded as ample to finish the contract. It is doubtful if a building has been erected in this city under as exacting supervision as the postoffice. The government inspectors have been untiring in their oversight of every detail of the work.

Belvidere Band Famous

Famous as a first class musical organization is the National Sewing Machine company's band which will give a concert tomorrow afternoon at Crystal Springs park three miles up the river. On the electric line at noon a crowd of fully 1,000 excursionists are expected to accompany the band. Three steamers will be put into commission on Sunday afternoon to accommodate the people from here who desire to spend the afternoon at this charming up-river resort.

THE FAIR

South River Street

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, June 27, 1863.—Immense Western immigration.—A letter from near Omaha City, Nebraska, says: "There are 900 wagons going through to the mines. There is also a government escort of 100 cavalry going through with them. The roads are covered with wagons most of the time—some going to Pike's Peak, and others to Washington territory."

Rosecrans' army, with the exception of one division, moved on Wednesday night. Matters in Monroe county, Indiana, are becoming serious. Col. Biddle, who has four companies there, has asked for reinforcements and a section of artillery. Deserters are said to number fifteen hundred.

Matters at Vicksburg are becoming intensely interesting. A council of war was held lasting two days, during which there was a cessation of firing. The council was terminated on Saturday evening, when a terrific cannonading was opened all along the lines by batteries and mortar boats. Prisoners and deserters still assert that provisions are very scarce in the doomed city.

Address of the Iron Brigade.—The Iron Brigade, of which the 2nd, 6th, and 7th Wisconsin constitutes a part, has recently been put in a new division. It is now the 1st brigade, 1st division of the 1st corps of the Army of the Potomac.

A rebel merchant at Nassau writes to his brother at Columbia, Georgia, that Confederate money is nearly worthless; that he had recently bought some of it for four cents on the dollar; that the best that can be done with it is eight dollars for one in gold; and that very soon it would not be worth the paper it is printed on.

Two deserters leaped from a railroad train near Harrisburg some days since and managed to escape. They were handcuffed together, and that they escaped with their lives is truly wonderful.

Herald's Harrisburg Specials.—The citizens are organizing to serve in the rifle pits. The rebel advance still continues in the vicinity of Carlisle. The Susquehanna river has risen twenty inches. At headquarters, it is said, that the rebels appear to be concentrating in the Blue Ridge passes.

STONEGRAVE OVERMAN

"Are you the manager?" "I am, sir. How did you get in here? I directed the attendant to admit no one."

"Never mind that. I am here to read you a play, a play in which there is a great deal of money, a play—" "Leave it. I will read it."

"Give me five minutes of your time. I will read you the first lines. Then you can finish it at your leisure."

Without waiting for permission, the stranger, a tall, spare man, with pointed mustache and chin tuft, a glittering black eye and a hook nose, began to recite without referring to the manuscript the opening lines of his play. Never before had the manager heard such versatility in the assumption of different characters. Now the reader was the loving father, now the innocent girl, the hopeful man of twenty-one. Into all these he infused the individuality of the part, but when he came to the principal character, the villain, his listener was lost in wonder. Presently the reader stopped, took out his watch and said:

"The time I asked is up."

"Go on."

The reading proceeded, and when the play was finished the manager, astounded at the vigor of the play and the genius of the reader, asked for his name.

"My name is Stonegrave Overman. I think I have satisfied you that I can write a play. At the first rehearsal I shall satisfy you that I can act a part."

"You will personate—"

"The villain."

In half an hour the playwright left the theater with a contract, and in two weeks the play was produced, with Stonegrave Overman cast for the principal part.

"What a singular name!" exclaimed every one. "Stonegrave Overman! Who is the man anyway? I don't find any of the theatrical profession who ever heard of him."

When the star came on, notwithstanding the abstraction of papers by Mrs. Tyner from the safe in the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, will probably be placed before the grand jury soon. Although two indictments already have been returned against August W. Machen, the former general superintendent of the free delivery system, additional evidence is being put into shape for submission to the grand jury.

Postmaster General Payne did not go to the postoffice department Friday owing to his ill health. Except for his attendance at the cabinet meeting he spent the day resting in his apartments, where he signed the mail brought to him.

SEED CONTRACT SUIT. Foreman Makes Affidavit to Serious Charges Against Firm. Washington, June 27.—In the Nellis seed contract suit before the court of claims an affidavit by Charles Kingsley of Falls Church, Va., has been made public, alleging that A. C. Nellis of New York, who had the contract for furnishing seed, ready for distribution to the government two years ago, directed that no books were to be kept and that the packages should be light weight.

The legal representatives of Nellis are suing for the payment of $18,000 which Secretary Wilson withheld from the contract payment for alleged nonperformance of contract. The full amount of the contract was $108,000. Secretary Wilson said that the $18,000 was withheld as the result of an inquiry into the work of the contractor at the time and that the government is still in possession of Nellis' bond for $35,000. Mr. Wilson said that he had directed that the seed contract and its execution be probed to the bottom and that the investigation was not implicated anyone in government employ.

Kingsley was foreman for Nellis, and in his affidavit says Nellis instructed him to notify the employees engaged in putting up this seed to let the weights run light, and that he knows that these instructions were followed.

EXEMPTS ENDOWMENT FUNDS Minnesota Supreme Court Holds Episcopal Institution Nonassessable. St. Paul, Minn., June 27.—The supreme court declares that the Bishop Seabury mission endowment fund is exempt from taxation. The decision affects other educational institutions in the state. Rice county sought to collect taxes to the amount of $55,000, an amount sufficient to have forced the Seabury divinity school, an Episcopal institution, out of existence.

Babcock Out of Race. Milwaukee, June 27.—Congressman J. W. Babcock has made a formal pledge not to be a candidate for United States Senator before the next Legislature and Senator Charles will have a solid stalwart support for re-election.

Cardinal Confers Pallium. Athens, June 27.—A cabinet crisis has taken place as the result of a vote in the chamber, by 114 to 95, of a want of confidence in the ministry.

DISAGREE OVER PRINTING BIG

TYPOTHETAE ENTERS PROTEST

Employing Printers Declare That if the Proposal is Accepted It Will Encourage Treachery on the Part of Employees—Payne Is Ill.

Washington, June 27.—Postoffice officials are divided over the question of awarding the contract for printing money orders. Assistant Attorney General Robb of the department has submitted an opinion that Paul Herman, whose bid is $45,000 below that of the present contractors, should be accepted. This is the case which led to the dismissal of Superintendent Metcalf of the money order bureau. He lost his position through trying to induce Herman to withdraw his bid.

Typothetae Protest. It is charged that Herman prepared the bid for the present contractors, and with that knowledge fresh in his mind, resigned from the company and sent in a bid under his own name. The United Typothetae has protested against awarding the contract to Herman on the ground that it will encourage treachery to employers.

Chicago has recently furnished a precedent that fits the present dilemma. In the Chicago case it was said one man had sent in two bids for pneumatic service, or if not sending in two bids, knew the figures in both. After considerable bickering and difference of opinion the case reached Postmaster General Payne, and he ordered the contract canceled and the bids thrown out on the ground that there had been no competition. New bids were then advertised for and the contract awarded.

To Probe Tyner Case.

What is known as the Tyner case, involving the abstraction of papers by Mrs. Tyner from the safe in the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, will probably be placed before the grand jury soon. Although two indictments already have been returned against August W. Machen, the former general superintendent of the free delivery system, additional evidence is being put into shape for submission to the grand jury.

Postmaster General Payne did not go to the postoffice department Friday owing to his ill health. Except for his attendance at the cabinet meeting he spent the day resting in his apartments, where he signed the mail brought to him.

Clever Fisher Marten.

The fisher marten deserves to be much better known than he generally is. It only on account of his own good opinion of himself, his wonderful cunning and shrewd intelligence.

One of the largest and handsomest of the martens, he has also agility, strength and endurance for any two of his kind put together, according to a writer in Collier's Weekly. Measuring about three feet in length, with a slim, vigorous body, the fisher will travel enormous distances in a single night, bounding lightly up into the air, with his nose turned up in order to catch every little whiff of scent, outwitting other animals and the cleverest trappers and making himself at home wherever he happens to find himself.

He generally chooses as his hunting grounds the thickly covered hills and ridges where the hemlock and spruce grow in abundance, but he is as much at home on the tree tops as on the ground, and can sleep as soundly in a low hollow of a tree as on a branch of a fir tree, where he will lie stretched out in the sunshine like any old cat.

As for fear, he does not know what it is. He will not only face but actually kill a Canadian porcupine, and does not even appear to mind the quills which penetrate his body. He is not particularly fond of meeting an old bear with cubs, but is generally clever enough to steal her cubs while she goes off on some little expedition of her own, while instances have been related of the fishers in the Rocky mountains even killing young grizzlies.

As for man, he appears to laugh at him and his designs for trapping wild animals. He will pull a marten trap open and pull out the bait, whether alive or dead; he will tear a pine marten or mink to pieces in no time and carry it off, or drag the trap over some rough projection in order to spring it and make off more often than not without having received so much as a scratch.

But perhaps his cleverest trick is, when he finds a trapper is following his trail, to go behind the trapper and follow him, so that while the unconscious trapper is following the fisher, the fisher is keeping completely out of danger by following the trapper. Many a useless mile has the trapper walked in this manner, and many good baits has he lost by the very same shrewd cunning animal he is trying to trace and catch.

one of his incubators. The freak is alive, and healthy.

CHAPTER VI.

THE young people assembled slowly at the dance that evening. Toward dark it had begun raining, and, according to custom, two livery stable carriages, called "backs," were engaged to convey all the couples to and from the hotel.

Everything in life is relative, and to young people who often went to even less pretentious entertainments this affair was rather impressive in its elegance. Lamps shone everywhere, and bunches of candles blazed and sputtered in nooks hung about with evergreens. The girls were becomingly attired in light evening gowns, and many of them were good looking, refined and graceful. All were soft spoken and easy in their manners and either wore or carried flowers. The evening suits of the young men were well in evidence and more noticeable to the wearers themselves than they would have been to a spectator used to conventional style of dress. They could be seen in all stages of inadaptability to figures too large or too small, and even after the dance began there were several swaps and a due amount of congratulation on the improvement from the appreciative fair sex. The young lady accompanying each young man had planned a small bouquet on his lapel, so that it would have been impossible to tell whether a man had a natural taste for flowers or was the willing victim to a taste higher than his own.

Rayburn Miller and Alan sat smoking and talking in the room of the latter till half past 9 o'clock, and then they went down. As a general rule, young men were expected to escort ladies to dances when the young men went at all, but Alan was often excused from so doing on account of living in the country, and Miller had broken down every precedent in that respect and never invited a girl to go with him. He atoned for this shortcoming by contributing most liberally to every entertainment given by the young people, even when he was out of town. He used to say he liked to graze and nibble at such things and felt free to go to bed or business at will.

As the two friends entered the big parlor Alan espied the girl about whom he had been thinking all day. She was seated in one of the deep, lace curtained windows behind the piano. Frank Hillhouse was just presenting to her a faultlessly attired traveling salesman. At this juncture one of the floor managers with a white rosette on his lapel called Miller away to ask his advice about some details and Alan turned out of the parlor into the wide corridor which ran through the house. He did this in obedience to another unwritten law governing Darley's social intercourse—that it would be impolite for a resident gentleman to intrude himself upon a stranger who had just been introduced to a lady. So he went down to the ground floor and strolled into the office. It was full of tobacco smoke and a throng of men, some of whom were from the country and others from the town drawn to the hotel by the festivities. From the office a door opened into a bar and billiard room, whence came the clinking of ivory balls and the grumbling of cues. Another door led into the large dining room, which had been cleared of its tables that it might be used for dancing. There were a sawing of fiddles, the twanging of guitars, the jingle of tambourines and the grumbling of a brass band. The musicians, black and yellow, occupied chairs on one of the tables, which had been placed against the wall, and one of the floor managers was engaged in whittling paraffin candles over the floor and rubbing it in with his feet. Seeing what he was doing, some of the young men, desirous of trying their new patent leather pumps, came in and began to waltz singly and in couples.

When everything was in readiness, the floor manager piloted the dancers downstairs. From the office Alan saw them filing into the big room and taking seats in the chairs arranged against the walls on all sides. He saw Frank Hillhouse and Dolly Barclay sit down near the band; the salesman had disappeared. Alan threw his cigar away and went straight to her.

"Oh, here you are!" laughed Frank Hillhouse as Alan shook hands with her. "I told Miss Dolly coming on that the west wind would blow you this way, and when I saw Ray Miller just now I knew you'd struck the town."

"It wasn't exactly the wind," replied Alan. "I'm afraid you will forget me if I stay on the farm all the time."

"We certainly are glad to have you," smiled Miss Barclay.

"I knew she'd say that—I knew it. I knew it," said Hillhouse. "A girl can always think of nice things to say to a fellow than his rival can. Old Squire Trabue was teasing me the other day about how hard you was to beat, Bishop, but I told him the bigger the war the more victory for somebody, and, as the fellow said, I tote fair and am aboveboard."

Alan greeted this with an all but visible shudder. There was much in his dignified bearing and good appearance to commend him to the preference of any thinking woman, especially when contrasted to Hillhouse, who was only a little taller than Dolly and was showing himself even at a greater disadvantage in his unrefined allusions to his and Alan's attentions to her. Indeed Alan was sorry for the spectacle the fellow was making of himself and tried to pass it over.

"I usually come in on Saturdays," he explained.

"That's true," said Dolly, with one of her rare smiles.

"Yes"—Hillhouse took another head-into forbidden waters—"he's about joined your church, they tell me." Alan treated this with an indulgent smile. He did not dislike Hillhouse, but he did not admire him, and he had never quite liked his constant attentions to Miss Barclay. But it was an acknowledged fact among the society girls of Darley that if a girl refused to go out with any young man in good standing it was not long before she was left at home oftener than was pleasant. Dolly was easily the best looking girl in the room—not perhaps the most daintily pretty, but she possessed a beauty which strength of character and intellect alone could give to a face already well featured. Even her physical beauty alone was of that texture which gives the beholder an agreeable sense of solidity. She was well formed, above medium height, had a beautiful neck and shoulders, dark gray eyes and abundant golden brown hair.

"May I see your card?" asked Alan. "I came early to secure at least one." At this Frank Hillhouse burst out laughing, and she smiled up at Alan. "He's been teasing me all evening about the predicament I'm in," she explained. "The truth is, I'm not going to dance at all. The presiding elder happened in town today on his way through and is at our house. You know how bitter he is against church members dancing. At first mamma said I shouldn't come a step, but Mr. Hillhouse and I succeeded in getting up a compromise. I can only look on. But my friends are laying pity on me and filling my card for what they call stationary dances."

Alan laughed as he took the card, which was already almost filled, and wrote his name in one of the blank spaces. Some one called Hillhouse away, and then an awkward silence fell upon them. For the first time Alan noticed a worried expression on her face.

"You have no buttonhole bouquet," she said, noticing his bare lapel. "That's what you set for not bringing a girl. Let me make you one."

"I wish you would," he said thoughtfully, for as she began to search among her flowers for some rosebuds and leaves he noted again the expression of countenance that had already puzzled him.

"Since you are so popular," he went on, his eyes on her left fingers, "I'd better try to make another engagement. I'd as well confess that I came in town solely to ask you to let me take you to church tomorrow evening."

He saw her start. She raised her eyes to his almost imploringly, and then she looked down. He saw her breast heave suddenly as with tightened lips she leaned forward to pin the flowers on his coat. The jewels in her rings flashed under his eyes. There was a delicate perfume in the air about her glorious head. He had never seen her look so beautiful before. He wondered at her silence at just such a moment. The tightness of her lips gave way, and they fell to trembling when she started to speak.

"I hardly know what to say," she began. "I—I—you know I said the presiding elder was at our house, and—"

"Oh, I understand," broke in Alan; "that's all right. Of course, use your own."

"No, I must be plain with you," she broke in, raising a pair of helpless, tortured eyes to his. "You will not think I had anything to do with it. In fact, my heart is almost broken. I'm very, very unhappy."

He was still totally at sea as to the cause of her strange distress. "Perhaps you'd rather not tell me at all," he said sympathetically. His tone never had been so tender. "You need not, you know."

"But it's a thing I could not keep from you long anyway," she said tremulously. "In fact, it is due you—an explanation, I mean. Oh, Alan, papa has taken up the idea that we—that we like each other too much, and—"

The life and soul seemed to leave Alan's face.

"I understand," he heard himself saying; "he does not want me to visit you any more."

She made no reply. He saw her catch a deep breath, and her eyes went down to her flowers. The music struck up. The mulatto leader stood waving his fiddle and calling for "the grand march" in loud, melodious tones. There was a scrambling for partners. The young men gave their left arms to the ladies and merrily dragged them to their places.

"I hope you do not blame me—that you don't think that I— But the clatter and clamor lulged her words.

"No, not at all," he told her. "But it's awful; simply awful! I know you are a true friend, and that's some sort of comfort."

"And always shall be," she gulped. "You must try not to feel hurt. You know my father is a very peculiar man and has an awful will, and nobody was ever so obstinate."

Then Alan's sense of the great injustice of the thing rose up within him, and his blood began to boil. "Perhaps I ought to take my name off your card," he said, drawing himself up slightly. "If he were to hear that I talked to you tonight, he might make it unpleasant for you."

"If you do, I shall never—never forgive you," she answered in a voice that shook. There was, too, a glittering in her eyes as if tears were springing. "Wouldn't that show that you harbored ill will against me, when I am so helpless and troubled?"

"Yes, it would, and I shall come back," he made answer. He rose, for Hillhouse, calling loudly over his shoulder to some one, was thrusting his bowed arm down toward her. "I beg your pardon," he said to Dolly. "I didn't know they had called the march. We've got some ice cream hid out upstairs, and some of us are going for it. Won't you take some, Bishop?"

"No, thank you," said Alan, and they left him.

LED A DOUBLE LIFE.

Col. Plant's Sudden Death Reveals Strange Doings.

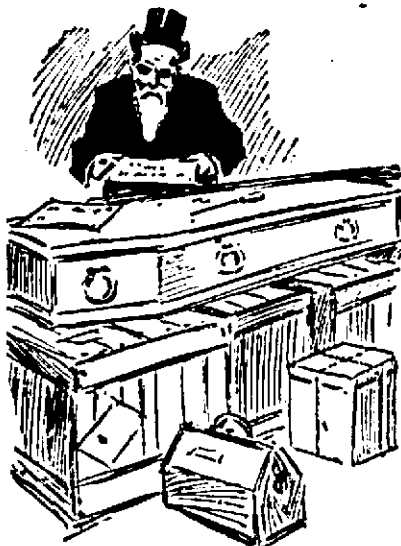

Known as "Edmund Hall" in a Quiet English Village Where He Reared a Family—Two Plates on His Coffin.

A London cable to the New York Sun says that from the west of England there comes a strange story of the double life lived by a man without suspicion for more than 19 years, his neighbors, and even his own son, being ignorant of it till his sudden death revealed the truth.

Nineteen years ago there came to live in a house called the Old Grange, in the small Dorsetshire village of Oborne, Edmund Hall, an accountant by profession. He lived at Oborne with his wife and family for 19 years, during which period they gained the respect of the whole neighborhood.

Mr. Hall was a great bee fancier. On Monday, September 1, he drove with his little son to a neighboring farm in the village of Templecombe, where he took some hives of bees. Afterward he went to a farmhouse, and while taking tea with the wife of the farmer he suddenly fell dead of heart disease. No suspicions were aroused, although some surprise was expressed at the news that Mr. Hall would be buried on the following Saturday at Bristol, instead of in Oborne churchyard, where a son, 17½ years of age, who died in 1901, and a son 16 years old, who died in 1902, he buried.

On Wednesday the Bristol newspapers announced the sudden death of heart disease on the previous Monday at a small village near Templecombe of one of the most distinguished, best known and respected inhabitants of Bristol, Col. Edmund Carter Plant, C. B., who would be buried on Saturday in Bristol with full military honors. Some residents of Sherbourne, where Hall was well known, on seeing this, noticed the strange coincidences of the date and the manner and cause of the two men's deaths. But the editor of the Sherbourne Post suspected something more. He made inquiries which convinced him as to the identity of Hall and Plant, but he was unable to prove his case. However, he did not lose sight of the body, which on Friday evening was taken to the station attended by a large number of sorrowing villagers, and was placed in the guard's van. The coffin plate was seen to be inscribed "Edmund Hall. Died September 2, 1902, aged 30 years."

The Bristol undertaker entered the van with the coffin, but at the junction where the van was detached and coupled to another train this man changed to an ordinary carriage and when the train had arrived at Bristol the coffin plate was seen to be inscribed:

"Edmund Carter Plant, C. B., Colonel Bristol Engineers, died September 2, 1902, aged 60."

On Saturday the streets of Bristol were thronged with thousands of people anxious to see the funeral, which was the finest military spectacle the populace had seen since the late Queen Victoria visited the place in 1897. Eight colonels acted as pallbearers. This distinguished resident of Bristol was laid in the cemetery of the town beside his wife, who died in 1900, and to whom he was married in 1865.

Plant's career, from his boyhood, with the exception of the 19 years he lived at Oborne as Hall, is well known. He had lived at Bristol since 1861. According to Who's Who, he was lieutenant colonel and colonel commanding of the Second Gloucester volunteers, R. E. (the Bristol engineers). He passed through all the grades from soldier to colonel commanding.

Not until his death was the identity of their father revealed to their children at Oborne. "Mrs. Hall" knew, and but for the clumsy work of his legal advisers when they notified the newspapers of the colonel's death, the secret would never have been revealed. The mention of Templecombe gave the clue, however, and resulted in the exposure. The colonel's absence at Bristol or Oborne, "on business," never aroused the slightest suspicion.

The Wild Man of Barneo.

A professional "Wild Man of Barneo," named Calvin Bird, a negro, went to a hospital at Syracuse, N. Y., to have his horns removed. Under his scalp a silver plate had been ingeniously inserted, in which stood two standards. Into these standards, when he was on exhibition, Bird had screwed two goat's horns, and thousands of people have paid to see his horns and hear him bark.

West-Moore

A very pretty wedding took place, Friday, June 26, at 2 p. m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bliss, Milton, when Miss Mattie A. West and N. O. Moore, Jr., were united in marriage by the Rev. L. A. Platts, assisted by the Rev. L. A. Randolph. The rooms were handsomely decorated with carnations and roses, and the ceremony took place under an arch of sweet briar roses in a bay window. The couple marched in unattended, to the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Kathryn Bliss, and Rev. Platts pronounced the words that made them man and wife.

About forty relatives were present and offered their congratulations and best wishes. Light refreshments were served. The bride was dressed simply and becomingly in Persian lawn and carried American Beauty roses. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. West of Fanna, Ill., and has been attending Milton college. The groom was graduated Thursday from Milton college. He has also been employed during his college course by the Milton Journal as foreman of the job department. The couple will make their home at Scandinavia, Wis., where the groom has a position as principal of the public school.
